

ICHE 2020

SEPTEMBER 2021

14TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON HYDROSCIENCE AND ENGINEERING

About the Conference

The 14th of the International Conference on Hydrosience & Engineering, ICHE 2020 will be held in Çeşme, Turkey on September 2021.

The International Conference on Hydrosience & Engineering began in Washington DC in 1993, and followed by Beijing hosted ICHE in 1995, Cottbus (1998), Seoul (2000), Warsaw (2002), Brisbane (2004), Philadelphia (2006), Nagoya (2008), Chennai (2010), Orlando (2012), Hamburg (2014) Tainan (2016) and Chongqing (2018). These conferences provided a common ground researchers and engineers to report and discuss the latest scientific advancements and practitioner's solutions in hydrosience and engineering.

ICHE 2020 aims to bring together researchers and practicing engineers to share the latest scientific and technological advancements in hydrosience and engineering, and will provide networking opportunities for future activities. Participants will be able to hear experts in the field discuss the latest achievements in in issues relevant to Hydro-Engineering for Sustainable Development.

Academics, research scientists, practitioners and students are invited to submit abstracts for talks or poster presentations in one of the areas listed in the conference themes.

CONFERENCE TOPICS

Coastal and Maritime Hydraulics
Dam Hydraulics and Safety
Computational Hydraulics and Turbulent flows
Water Resources and Climate Change
Fluvial Hydraulics and Waterway Navigation
Water Quality and Ecohydraulics
Watershed Hydrology and Management
Sediment Transport and Reservoir Sedimentation
Groundwater Flow and Contaminant Transport
Hydropower and Sustainable Energy
Urban Flooding and Drainage
Advances in Laboratory Measurements and Instrumentation
Field Measurements and Data Collection
